OUR HERITAGE

HOW YOU CAN HELP

remember
ST PAUL'S

For centuries, St Paul's Cathedral has graced the London skyline, withstanding fire, warfare, fog, filth and every other test of time – but not without continuous effort and considerable sums of money. Every crumbling stone, worn mosaic, faded illumination and wheezing organ pipe must be painstakingly restored if we are to protect our heritage for generations to come.

SAM LLOYD

St Paul's Cathedral was completed on Wren's 76th birthday, in October 1708, when the final stone was laid in the Lantern. Some 300 years later, the expert masons of the Cathedral Works Department undertake a painstaking programme year on year, restoring and cleaning the stonework to reveal the full glory of their predecessors' craftsmanship.

Preserving the nation's best-loved building is an endless labour requiring perpetual funding. One of the most effective ways of helping is to make a gift in your Will.

You may be happy to contribute to the Cathedral's general endowment. If not, you can ask us to allocate your gift to a specific area of long-term activity such as those listed overleaf.

CRESCENT LODGE

The forbidding West Steps, the challenging acoustics and change of floor level between Crypt and Cathedral make access difficult for some visitors and worshippers. Great improvements are being made, including re-laying paving and even offering virtual access from the comfort of the Crypt. Future plans involve broadening access to visitors of all ages with enhanced education and interpretation facilities.

The conservation of the fabric of the building.

The development of access for visitors of all ages and abilities.

The enhancement of the Cathedral's musical and liturgical life.

The protection of our collections of monuments, art works, books and bells.

You may also be interested to hear that a gift like this made to a charity like St Paul's is exempt from Inheritance Tax.

PHILIP WAY

St Paul's world-famous organ comprises 7,256 pipes and 140 stops. Throughout the year, it accompanies the Cathedral's 40 boy choristers and 18 adult vicars choral in the full range of regular and special services and concerts. In 2007, a £1 million restoration programme began, including the installation of a second console to enable the organist to see and be seen by congregations and concert-goers alike.

With wise foresight, Sir Christopher Wren himself identified the need for a 'perpetual growing fund' to assure the future of St Paul's Cathedral. If you would like to help us realise Wren's vision, please contact the Foundation, consult our website or complete and return this form. Your response will of course be treated in utmost confidence, and your interest is much appreciated. Thank you.
